Tantalising trends

This year's Lakmé Winter/Festive 2012 Fashion Week was abuzz with creativity and effortless style for every possible occasion

MONOCHROME

Designers went all out to display exquisite monochrome numbers that screamed 'dress to impress!' The make-up that matched many floor length dresses was clean and elegant.

STATEMENT NECKPIECES

The accessories which stood out the most were the statement neckpieces. Ditching the 'less is more' mantra, designers chose to emphasise trendy pieces that went hand in hand with the outfits.

HEADGEAR

A slew of designers returned to magical headgear that accentuated the look and overall feel of any ensemble. Feathers, flowers, turbans and gold chains all added to the oomph at the shows.

LAYERING

Designers returned to layering, whether it was daywear or evening. Sarees, ghaghras, gowns and salwars were all intricately layered with jackets, scarves, coats etc.

SMOKEY EYES

The highlight of the make-up was definitely smokey eyes. The eyes were well defined and stood out; complementing the ensembles and adding miles of character and depth.

PRINTS

The bright, bold prints showcased the true colours of India. From Pac-man saree blouses, to pie chart ensembles, all the creations were very original and eye-popping.
